13 post offices are going to close

When the Faeroese postal service was turned into a limited company in 2005 it was decided that some post offices would remain open in certain villages until the end of 2010. The Act of 2005 stated that this should be 21 post offices in various places.

It became clear as early as 2005 that the need for post offices was decreasing as postal distribution became more up-to-date in step with technological developments. Therefore, the Act also stated that no more than seven post offices would be necessary after the beginning of 2011.

Since the postal service was turned into a limited company, Posta has constantly increased its use of new technology in order to provide customers with better service.

The first 'PostSelf' automats were established in four places in the Faeroes in 2008. This meant that customers could now decide when they wanted to make use of the postal service.

The new Posta Heima service was launched in 2009. Posta Heima is a kind of mobile post office that visits customers. The courier drives to the customer's address so that the person in question can carry out all of his/her normal postal transactions at home. This service is available in both villages and towns.

An agreement was signed with the Samkeyp and Merko chains (convenience goods stores with long opening hours) shortly after Posta Heima was launched. Customers can take care of their usual postal errands, such as sending letters, at these stores because they also sell stamps and large and small envelopes and have letter boxes outside. We call this service PostaHer.

The most important functions of post offices are to receive payments and keep parcels for collection. But the number of customers who visit post offices is falling in step with the competition from on-line banking and the Posta Heima service.

The time has therefore come to close some post offices and the following 13 will be closed at the end of December:

1. Eiði
2. Fuglafjörður
3. Gøta
4. Hvalba
5. Kollafjörður
6. Leirvík
7. Sandavágur
8. Skopun
9. Strendur
10. Sørvágur
11. Toftir
12. Vágur
13. Vestmanna

In this connection it will be possible for our philatelist customers to buy last day of issue covers, franked and stamped, from 30/12/10 from the above-mentioned post offices. See enclosed order form.
